ANNOUNCEMENT

Evaluation of time series as seasonal and calendar adjusted has a great importance in analysis of economic developments. Together with comparison of published official data with the same month/period of previous year, being able to make comparisons within successive month/period provides an additional value in terms of data analysis.

Accordingly, Sectoral Confidence Indices will be published as seasonally adjusted beginning from January 2014. The first Press Release on this context "Sectoral Confidence Indices January 2014" will be released at 10:00 am, on 27 January 2014.

Announced to the public with respect.
